PRESENTATION DESCRIPTION: (INSTRUCTIONAL LEVEL: INTERMEDIATE)

A trained psychoanalyst, Dr. James Masterson is a recognized authority with regard to the psychotherapy of the personality disorders, the developer of what has come to be known as the Masterson approach to psychoanalytic psychotherapy and the author of a number of well known books that have been translated into many languages. He was also the founder and director of the Masterson Institute for Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy.

Dr. Masterson was one of the first people to bring the psychoanalytic approach known as object relations theory to bear on the study of personality disorders of the self. Object relations theory was primarily meant to explain human behavior. But in work he began in the mid-20th century, Dr. Masterson came to believe that it also held the key to personality, in particular the origin and treatment of personality disorders. Masterson helped psychiatry shift to offer more complex, more effective models in the treatment of personality disorders. The enormous contribution he made was in the understanding of personality disorders and the evolution of personality.

Cathy Stamm Kaufman, LCSW, is a graduate and associate of the Masterson Institute in New York. She will be discussing the different internal structures and treatment of narcissistic, borderline, and schizoid personalities. Case material will be presented.
